spelling and grammar: 0 / 1 # manegement, langeuages

clarity: 1 / 1

makes good use of each member's background: 2 / 2

2) Introduce the team members: 26 out of 30

I am assuming 5 members. If your team has four members, scale accordingly.

for each member:

approx 150 words: 1. 1 1 1 1 1

spelling and grammar: 1. 1 0 1 1 0

Ryan: 'His goal on next is...', 'frame works', 'and lovely share everything'

Andrew: 'Good at learn anything', 'he must can be a good'

clarity: 1. 1 1 1 1 0

Andrew: 'Good at learn anything', 'he must can be a good'

professionalism: 2. 2 2 2 2 1

Hard to award full marks if not clear.

The members' introductions are consistent w.r.t. person (in first/third person), style, qualities/interests described, etc., so that the overall introduction reads well: 5 / 5

3) Team agreement: 6 out of 10

methods of communication, including wait time for replies, clearly stated: 1 / 2

Not wait time stated

meeting times arranged: 2 / 2

contingency planning (member is sick, missing meetings, not performing up to standards, etc.): 1 / 2

Great, but remember to reach out to the TA / Prof for advice as soon as possible

use of version control is discussed: 1 / 2

Good, I want to see more in terms of branching, using PRs etc

some planning of individual roles: 1 / 2

Could have suggested a few individual roles, i.e. someone does spell check, someone leads backend development, someone designated to communicate with the TA / client etc
